

Leaving an easily accessible system in place that could technically be accessed without warrant invites abuse by law enforcement where the only repercussion is that the evidence gained can not be used until a warrant is issued and a mock search staged. This is kin to putting cameras in everyone's home, that while typically off, can be turned on at any time externally without notification to engage in a fishing expedition.

Better yet, it is much like the police knocking on your door, setting up all the equipment used to gather evidence, then attempting to gain warrant. It is backwards and clearly illegal under the constitution.

Illegal and gray area searches occur daily already and its my belief that in the enthusiasm exhibited by our law enforcement personnel, to take on the difficult task of fighting terrorism and other crime, the spirit of our law is lost and thus ultimately freedom is lost.

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."
